

Lard Has Been in Existence a Long Time--So Has Indigestion

Human nature is hard to solve. People who are most particular about adapting the weight of their wearing apparel to the season and its conditions, who never think of going out in a storm without an umbrella and rubbers, who would not sit in a draft, will day after day eat lard-soaked food and not realize for an instant that it is clogging their whole inner machinery. Lard is produced from hog fat, sometimes pure, always indigestible.

Cottolene is the best frying and shortening medium in the world. It is made from refined cottonseed oil. From Cottonfield to Kitchen—human hands never touch the oil from which Cottolene is made. Everything in Cottolene is digestible and conducive to health.

COTTOLENE is Guaranteed Your grocer is hereby authorized to refund your money in case you are not pleased, after having given Cottolene a fair test.

Never Sold in Bulk Cottolene is packed in pails with an air-tight top to keep it clean, fresh and wholesome, and prevent it from catching dust and absorbing disagreeable odors, such as fish, oil, etc.

It is the hustler who will always win out. The man who admits his defeat had as well get out of the race, and save further effort. It is the man who never admits he is beat that is a winner. He may not be winning just now, but he is enough to be grasped.

Flies are disease carriers; they live and breed in filth; they infect food and drink by germ-laden feet; they are a pest that should be exterminated now, before the weather gets hot. Each female can lay 150 eggs which in a few days will produce as many flies. One fly killed now may mean the prevention of hundreds of flies a little later on. Swat the fly; screen them out, and destroy their breeding places.

AWFUL FALL OF KATY FIREMAN.

J. M. Price Went From Cab of Alamo Special Into the Blanco River.

Smithville, Texas, May 12.—J. M. Price, fireman on the Katy's Alamo Special, due here at 2:15 this morning, fell from his engine into the bed of the Blanco river, just this side of San Marcos, receiving injuries from which he died before the train reached this city.

The engineer, J. B. Parrott, did not see the accident, nor miss his fireman for some minutes.

When he did he backed the train up and Price was found in the river bed still conscious, but fatally injured. He was unable to tell how the accident occurred.

He fell from the first span of the bridge, a distance of 25 feet, breaking one leg. He also had a scalp wound and was evidently hurt internally.

He leaves a wife and an aunt who lived with him. He was about thirty years of age.

COMMISSION'S POSITION

Chairman Mayfield Makes Public Letter on I. & G. N. Situation, Bearing Indorsement of Williams.

Austin, Texas, May 12.—The order of the federal court at Dallas to the effect that the International and Great Northern railroad shall be sold to satisfy second and third mortgages subject to the first mortgage was read with interest here today.

The general impression is that the Gould interests will be protected in the sale of the property, and that the sale will not take place for three or four months.

In the railroad commission little was said about the matter. However, Chairman Mayfield made public a letter which he had written on the International and Great Northern case, which was indorsed by Commissioner Williams as a good letter, and follows:

"I have your letter of the 10th inst., and in reply beg to advise that the question of a revaluation of the International and Great Northern railroad has been carefully considered by the railroad commission and has been, after due deliberation, refused, and this was announced in an opinion prepared by Commissioner Williams and made public some time ago, and it is safe to say that this commission, nor any member of it, has any thought of making any change in the views therein expressed.

"The stock and bond law of this state was passed after an exhaustive discussion before the public, predicated upon the ground that the securities outstanding upon the railroads of this state consisted largely of watered stocks and bonds and represented nothing except the exploitations of the owners of the railroads and operated as an unjust and outrageous burden upon those who pay freight and passenger charges to railroad companies. It was preached all over Texas by the late lamented Hogg and those who followed in his footsteps that in due course of time these securities would become due and by the enactment of this law we could rid our railroads of this fictitious burden and establish a better standard for reasonable and just freight rates in this state.

"Speaking for myself individually, I have time and time again, in an official way, called attention to this state of affairs and have asked for the appointment of receivers to sell out these railroads in order to get rid of their indebtedness, that the people might be enabled to obtain reasonable freight rates and at the same time justify the same before the federal courts.

The people who have the claims against the railroad which you mention have my deepest sympathy, and if I had the power and if in the course of development later on in this case it appears that the power does exist, I assure you every such power will be exhausted by each member of the railroad commission to the end that these claimants shall not be denied payment of their judgments obtained against this railroad. Although it may be a fact that such claims are superseded by the mortgage lien of a bondholder, yet it is my opinion that in a moral aspect their claim is superior and every lawful means and method should be exhausted to prevent their confiscation. Beyond that, however, it ought not to be expected that the railroad commission would discredit itself and neutralize the virtues of the stock and bond law in order to bring about a condition that will compel the payment of such claims."
